RESEARCH ACTIVITY

RESEARCH INTERESTS

Current research interests revolve around integrating experience, emotion, and connections with other people. Also studying experience industry management and defining the experience industry, guiding transformations, using technology in outdoor recreation settings, and performing economic analyses. Previous research interests included the role of recreation in strengthening marriages and families as well as basic research in the measurement of family time. Much of my research agenda concentrated on rural tourism and natural resource based recreation. I have also been involved in projects considering religious tourism, international rural tourism development, and “ideal” recreation experiences.
